Joseph J. Zajac III : e-Humor! Version 1.0 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised e-Humor! Version 1.0:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. E-Humor filthy bookBy Marilyn McGlashanI was looking for a book that had computer-related humor and jokes. The title is very misleading because it's a collection of jokes found ON the internet, many of which are raw in their language. I would NEVER give such a book to anyone I knew! I'm still looking for a book with clean humor, something a computer guru / geek would not only enjoy but also in layman's terms so the rest of us can enjoy and understand the humor. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. I laughed so hard reading this book it hurt! By A Customer I could not put this book down! A must have book for those who like great jokes. The author really has a keen sense of what makes people laugh and neatly organizes all the jokes into several chapters for easy reading. Lots of jokes covering the major targets of humor such as Blondes, Bill and Hillary, Politics, Rednecks, Working, etc. As a long time member of the information systems community, the section on Science Technology tells it as it is! A sample from Technology Lies: 1. Of course we can modify it. 2. The programs work as designed. 3. We cannot duplicate your problem on our system. 4. We thoroughly test our software. 5. We are working on the documentation. Can hardly wait for the author to publish his next book. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Finally, something really funny to read. By William A breath of fresh air! Too often I see books covering boring subjects, boring people and boring technology. Absolutely nothing boring about e-Humor!, you just keep laughing regardless of the chapter or topic. The author really knows what makes people laugh. I am keeping this book on my office shelf to help me get through those tough days!

e-Humor! Version 1.0, is a collection of jokes collected from the highly interactive Internet. People everywhere enjoy humor and today more than ever, need a good healthy laugh. After a hard day's work, would you prefer a long drive home in bumper to bumper traffic or read a good selection of jokes? Be honest and no reading while driving! Read a few pages before leaving work to put you in a good mood! This book represents a compilation of those things that make the Internet an interesting and a truly valuable national asset - the jokes that are passed around! e-Humor!, Version 1.0, is the first book in my series of jokes acquired from the world's largest public domain repository, the Internet. Humor is the best relief from day to day stress so enjoy the jokes and have a good laugh!

About the Author Joe Zajac was born and raised in 'sunny' Syracuse, New York. Desiring to get away from the snow and learn the true meaning of 'hurry up and wait,' Joe enlisted in the Marine Corps to see the world. He has traveled extensively throughout Europe and continues to do so every few years. Upon graduating with a degree in International Business from Florida Atlantic University, Joe began answering want ads that contained the word 'computer' in the job description. His first position was landed because the hiring manager 'liked his briefcase.' The rest they say is history. . . On his lighter side, Joe's goal is to invent a new computer technology term that serves to confuse everyone and hopefully generate e-millions. Joe currently resides in Florida, with his loving and lovely wife Pamela and his loyal and very talkative, attack Dachshund, Athena. He is patiently waiting for an invitation from David Letterman of the Late Show to meet his talkative attack Dachshund, Athena, so she can say 'hellrow' to David. While waiting to attain those goals, Joe plans to continue writing joke books for your enjoyment.
