From MUSIC SALES AMERICA : POULENC UN JOUEUR FLUTE BRECE RUINES FLUTE before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised POULENC UN JOUEUR FLUTE BRECE RUINES FLUTE:

(Music Sales America). Un Joueur de flute berce les ruines (A flute player lullabies the ruins), is dated 1942. There is little information known about this piece since discovery of the manuscript. The work is modal and melancholic in style, its contours and economy recall the composers earliest works. It is short and simple, but of undeniable beauty, and undoubtedly an important addition to the solo flute repertoire.
